City Fathers Set; Ingram Takes Oath Rabin, Mr. Mayor

Not A Raffle In Program Of Organization By Commission

Zack Ingram, the only new member of the current City Commission, received a demonstration of "just how easy" city government is Wednesday night, for before his eyes had cleared from the flash bulbs used by photographers at his swearing-in, a mayor had been elected and all commissioners had been assigned to their respective jobs with a Treasurer selected, and instructions given to the Clerk to advertise for a City Manager.

Running as smoothly as a Florida football team in top form, the order of business was readied off in record time and the new Commission was ready to get down to business' before nine o'clock.

Commissioner Rabin, assumed the role of Chairman of the Commission and Mayor, in his second session as such.

Herman Close is Police Commissioner. Ashley L. Waters, Works Commissioner; Cocky Carlton is still building engineer; Ingram is Commissioner of Sanitation and Health; Rabin, as Commissioner, has charge of parks; the Parks Judge Lloyd was re-elected and Glade Jones is still legal adviser.

The defeated candidates were in the audience and were invited by the Mayor to make "talks". Sarah Crech and E. C. Mapp responded.

The new Commission directed the RDB to hold its annual barbecue this year in Belle Glade on October 17th.

WSWN will broadcast ROAD GAMES SAT. & M.

For the benefit of those who are unable to attend the road football games, primarily games played away from home, by the Belle Glade, Clewiston and Pahokee, WSWN will broadcast the games Saturday morning at 10:00 a.m.

The City has installed new parking meters that are harder to fool than the old ones. The idea of "the meter is not working" is taken care of through a device which indicates this.

You can still park one cent worth or a nickel's worth—12 minutes or 60.

Beginning October first, the "man" will be around watching, so be sure you have the change.

Old Age Insurance For Public Employees Being Reduced In 4th Quarter

The cost of carrying Old Age and Survivors Insurance on city and other public employees was reduced yesterday from 3 percent to 2 percent by action of the Florida Industrial Commission, it was announced by James T. Voeckel, Chairman. The new rate goes into effect with third quarter reports, due by October 10.

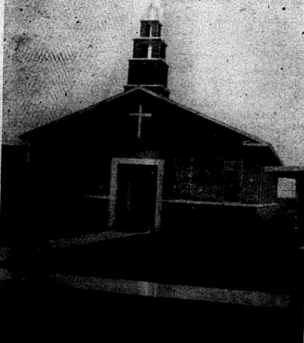

The Florida Industrial Commission is charged by state law with the administration of this phase of the federal program, with the local participating governments bearing the cost of administration.

Since the law went into effect in 1951, 151 Florida government bodies have elected to participate, making a total of 9,387 employees covered and quarterly taxable wages of around $5,000,000.

Voeckel said the Commission had held cost for handling the program down to a minimum in order to give participants advantage of a reduced rate.

Another change in the regulations acted on yesterday is that quarterly reports are now to be filed in duplicate so that a copy can be kept on file by the Commission and Mayor's office in case of making adjustments.

All Korean Veterans Asked As Honor Guests In Sincere Appreciative Demonstration

Spontaneous Desire Result In Reception Of Community's Real Americans

Fueled from a wide spread appreciation of the youth of our community, who have carried America's principles of fair dealing to the orient, with lives in jeopardy, and future physical and mental well being bearing scars, plans are effective for this community to honor all Korean veterans with a reception, one returned POW, representing one returned from death.

By letter and larger groups, by telephone messages from the community to the other, the idea spread and resulted in a Committee headed by Spider Lindrose and composed of representatives from Canal Point to South Bay completing plans for a thanksgiving demonstration of welcome to Sergeant Bass and the honoring of all Korean veterans.

The Legion of the several communities, the Rotary, Lions, Chamber of Commerce, BPWC, Elks, PTA, Woman's Club, Garden Club, City of Belle Glade officials, as well as County and State officials have been invited to the reception.

The Department, Commander of the American Legion for Florida, will deliver a short address following a welcome by the Mayor of Belle Glade, Harold Rabin and one from High School classmates.

The local Legion, Post will present Kenneth, with a Life Membership in the Legion. Doug Wooten is Marshall of the High School Band and will include the Legion Guard of Honor, the National Guard, the Saddle Club and other units together with automobiles.

Vernon Dexter, a Korean veteran, will offer a couple for the Committee on Arrangements will present his buddy Korean veteran, one returned POW, representing one returned from death.

Two season tickets to football games will be given the soldier and his wife, thru the courtesy of the South Bay Community Association.

Friends have made available a Palm-Beach-type automobile for the honeymooning.

"Kenneth Bass Home Fund" Gaining Momentum As Contributions Pile Up

Conceived by a World War II Veteran as a practical way of demonstrating real appreciation, a fund to be given to the Kenneth Bass couple for use towards purchasing a home has grown to several hundred dollars already thru voluntary donations.

Ed Lively has accepted the job of Keeper of the Fund, with Rupert Mapp at the Bank of Pahokee as his vice-chairman, and donations are accepted by each of them for this purpose.

All monies donated are kept in an account and "every penny" must be used for that purpose.

In addition to these two Chairmen, any member of the Commission will be glad to accept a donation for delivery to one of these Chairmen. Checks should be made to the Kenneth Bass Home Fund.

On Saturday afternoon, after the game they will be flown to Miami Beach as guests of the Citrus Mutual, where they will be subjected to the lure of Casa Blanca and other spots of interest on the Beach as guests of the Florida Fruit and Vegetable boys.

Sunday they will be taken on a plane trip in an Eastern Airline Falcon as guests of RDB.

Led by Chairman Clifford Hope of Kansas, republican Chairman and gently directed by Democratic Florida member, Syd Herlong, and other Florida Congressmen, twenty-two members of the House Committee on Agriculture are spending some six or seven days in Florida to study agriculture with a view of offering a "new deal" in agricultural legislation at the next Congress.

The Value of the Mormon Church, Secretary Benson, who has undergone disillusion at the hands of the bureaucrats in the Department of Agriculture after he sacrificed position and income as a leader in his religious work has the blessings of President Ike in an effort to rewrite legislation affecting American farmers.

Kahn Brings Experienced Manager To Direct New Belle Glade Store

Joe and Ruth Kahn, as owners, are in the midst of completely redecorating and enlarging the building owned by them on Avenue A for the operation of a store offering wearing apparel for the entire family.

Kahn has engaged Mr. Harvey Kesler for fifteen years associated with Montgomery Ward & Co. throughout the south and east in various capacities. Including several years as manager of some of the larger stores.

Kesler brought his family including four daughters to live in Belle Glade in June, and is building a home on NW Sec. 2 and Street.

In commenting on the plans, Mr. Kesler states, "Custom built fixtures are being installed and the interior is being completely redecorated."

"Nationally known and accepted brands of wearing apparel and shoes for men, women and children will be featured on the main floor, and a budget section is planned for the second floor which will be stocked with low priced but carefully selected wearing apparel. Also clothing and accessories will be devoted to necessities for the home such as sheets, pillows, towels, curtains."

The opening date has not been set yet, but the securing of the stock and complete arrangement is going forward with all practicable speed."

FLORIDA BOOK NEWS

Florida was one of the Confederate states. And Florida militia fought with gusto to stop the invasion by the Northern forces.

Tallahassee, Marianna, Pensacola, and other towns and cities were invaded by the Northern troops. And the fruit of sectionalism was no stronger in Montgomery, Ala., the capital of the Confederacy, than in these North Florida towns.

But after General Lee surrendered, Florida began almost immediately to adjust itself to postwar conditions. Even during the day of the Reconstruction, the native of the state were eager to have a newcomer adopt Florida as his or her home.

So it was that Harriet Beecher Stowe, the author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and the little woman whom Abraham Lincoln credited with starting the war, moved to Florida and made her home at Mandarin, a pleasant little town on the banks of the St. Johns river.

The account of Mrs. Stowe's residence in Florida comprises a part of Mary B. Craft's delightful book, "Mandarin in St. Johns," which was published recently by the University of Florida Press.

Besides introducing such a controversial figure as Mrs. Stowe whose experience in Florida are recounted with an understanding and warmth, the book is a picture of Florida life in the days before the flood of population swept down to the peninsula toward West Palm Beach and Miami.

"Mandarin on the St. Johns" will supply one with a pleasant evening of reading, and it is a book, too, that all Floridians will want for their shelf of permanent books of Florida.

NEGRO NEWS

EAST LAKE SCHOOL NEWS

The faculty of East Lake is placing more and more emphasis on citizenship year after year, trying to direct the youth toward wholesome channels that will be beneficial to the school center and community.

To keep in line with our school safety program we feel that the importance of safety in and outside the school plant cannot be over-emphasized, so under the leadership of Mr. Spurgeon Herring the Patrols have already been assigned to their respective duties.

Again, under the very capable sponsorship and supervision of Mrs. Mercedes Robinson we are looking forward to having another effective Junior Red Cross this year. Our youngsters have already realized how important it is to be charitable and willing to contribute to the needs of others. During the term the organization has planned to cooperate in filling gift boxes to be sent overseas to children particularly in the war-devastated areas, making of favors and decorations to be distributed to hospitals, Thanksgiving baskets to be given to the most needed ones in the community. Through our Junior Red Cross we hope to develop a more charitable spirit in our school and community.

The busy 3 B's and sponsors have established a small business in the classroom. It is a store set up to accommodate the children and teacher with the purchase of paper, pencils, candy and cookies. The store will be operated by the children and the teacher will serve as treasurer and purchasing agent. The store is quite a convenience to the school population.

Attendance Notes: Parents! Please let us maintain the importance of keeping our children in school and act accordingly. We are grateful to know that our new attendance officer, Mr. Langford Teague is willing to work cooperatively with the faculty in improving the attendance record of the school.

EVERGLADES VOCATIONAL HIGH SCHOOL

Classes and students are progressing rapidly and smoothly in the third week of the 53-54 school year at EVH. The students have adjusted themselves to school life with very much difficulty.

Wednesday, September 23rd the faculty members sponsored a chapel program. The entire faculty of EVH participate in the program. This was intended to set a precedent that may serve as a justification for further programs of the same kind by the students. The citizenry of the surrounding communities are invited to attend all chapel exercises during the school year. They are held every Wednesday morning at 11:40 a.m. and are over at 12:15.

Sports: The student body, faculty and citizenry are looking forward to our first home game with Alachua High of Danne, Florida. In order that EVH "Bobcats" are asking that you come out to the home games and cheer us on to victory. Your patronage will be highly appreciated.

Outdoor Florida

By Herb Mosher

The Florida Audubon Society stands squarely for conservation of wildlife and our natural resources. Palm Beach County has many outstanding members, for instance, and much good work is being accomplished here and about the state by the society. Mr. Hall Tannis, who is assistant director of the Florida Audubon society, and editor of its magazine (The Florida Naturalist) has written me today's guest column, upon request:

"It was just a little bird, about this high. Had some yellow along his sides."

"Well, said I, reaching for my bird book. 'Let's look him up.'"

In Peterson's Field Guide To The Birds, we found several birds that fitted the vague description given by my visitor. These birds were listed as Confusing Fall Warblers.

"They're confusing, alright," my visitor agreed, "but which one was it?"

A half an hour later we agreed that it had to be one of the species from another, specially when you are not an expert of any sort. We talked some more.

Bird Watching is an avocation, a recreation. Members of the younger generation are active about being called Bird Watchers. Only years can wear callous on the hand of an attendant upon that table. It may be that the much abused younger generation has become wary of ubiquitous lables. Maybe not.

Perhaps the fact most gratifying to the Bird Watcher is that wherever he goes, he has something to watch. Enthusiast is not for him. Even where no birds sing, or perch, or feed, there are the reasons why to watch for.

Mammal Tracking is a full time job, if you want to become proficient at it. Flower Sniffing is often resented by truceless bees. Serpent Chasing has its points, but I can find many people to agree with me on that. I have tried Lizard Leaping, but there's only about 30 varieties of Lizards here. Tree Peeling is one of the best; we have 36 varieties of trees in Florida, not including palms, grasses, and shrubs.

"But, look here," my visitor insisted, "if you can't tell me what kind of bird I saw, what is the Audubon Society for, anyway?"

That was the question I was waiting for. I explained why we Florida Audubon Society.

Sure, we cooperate with the National and other organizations; but first of all, we are of Florida, in Florida, and for Florida. That made an impression. He figured somebody ought to try to look out for Florida.

Then I let him have it with both barrels (No. 7, bird shot). I showed him the magazine we publish. The Florida Naturalist; articles not just on Natural History, which is interesting enough, but articles on game management, water control, pasture development, integrated land use, resource use abuses.

Next I hit him with our Teaching Program. How we've been giving free courses to public school seventh graders in Natural History and Conservation. That course winds up with a study of Ecology. That's a good word. An important word.

Last year alone, two thousand seventh graders took the basic implications of that word. In a few years, those boys and girls will be land owners, business men and voters. Some of them will have that word Ecology in mind when they cast a ballot about a bullet, or clear some land.

To hold him convinced, I told him of the Audubon Screen Tour Series. Five wildlife movies, in full color, accompanied by a practical course in the field. I explained the movie deals with. I explained the trips to marshes, through the rivers and lakes, into swamp and woodland; these are recreational and educational. I gave him the names and addresses of the Presidents of the Audubon Clubs around the State, so he can expect to meet a friend and a guide wherever he may travel.

I didn't have to tell him everything we do, or much of our long range plans. My visitor was too impatient. He couldn't wait.

"How do I join?" he said. I helped him fill out his application blank, handed him his membership card, accepted his three dollars. Then I shook his hand, congratulations on becoming a member of The Florida Audubon Society.

No. We never did decide what that little bird was.

Florida political observers believe that Claude Pepper will attempt to regain a seat in the United States Senate by opposing George Smathers in the next election.

Florida's newest major tourist attraction, Ponce de Leon Springs, was known as Garden Springs until late in the nineteenth century.

PARTY DISINTEGRATION EVIDENT ON BOTH SIDES

So much has been said in some newspapers about Senator Holland not going to the Democratic meeting in Chicago, that it might be well to set the record straight. When he was asked if he was going to attend, he said that he couldn't make it because of other plans. The he added, "All the efforts to bring the solid South back into the national party will be unavailing until the party organization takes the South into full partnership in drafting the platform and picking the nominees."

The page-one headlines here the next morning accused him of "boycotting" the meeting; one paper even intimated that he was an "Eisenhower Democrat."

Truth is, the invitations to some of the Senators at least, just didn't arrive until too late. For example, Senator Smathers didn't receive his invitation until the day before Senator Holland's statement. He might have attended if he had been asked before making other plans, even though the whole show had been up and running for some time.

It is a mistake to think that the party is falling apart. The party is still together, and it is still a powerful force in the country.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

By Russell Kay

A night clerk in an apartment hotel has a lot of time on his hands. Through the long hours of the night after guests have retired, activity on the switchboard eases off and a fellow has time to spend with his thoughts and dreams.

Bruce Atkins, night clerk at the Embassy Hotel Apartments in Tampa, found the task rather boring with nothing in particular to think and dream about until a friend and buddy would make a habit of dropping by for a visit most every evening came up with the question, "How would you like to take a trip around the world?"

Sure Bruce would like it. Who wouldn't? But whoever heard of night clerk, especially one with a wife and two-year-old daughter, embarking on such a venture? At best he couldn't raise more than a thousand dollars and that wouldn't take three people very far.

Bruce's friend, Lewis Levin, believed that a person could do anything they wanted to if they had faith and courage and were willing to work at it. If six or eight congenial folks with the same idea got together why couldn't they acquire a boat and make a trip around the world?

It was a crazy idea, of course, but the more Bruce thought about it the less formidable it seemed. Maybe it could be done. Maybe somebody with a boat would be in terested. Maybe other venturesome souls would pool their resources and effort to make such a dream a reality.

That's how it all started. Bruce and Lewis, with nothing to go on but a wild idea started to work on the problem. They began to look for a boat, and found a young chap named Bob Jefferies who owned a 60-foot auxiliary sail boat: the "Vagabond."

Bob was a good sailor and navigator. Twice he had piloted his "Vagabond" in the Baltimore to Nassau Yacht Race and won; an engineer and seasoned skipper, he was in a position to answer the problem of transportation. Bob was definitely interested.

Things were taking shape—now all they needed was a fellow crew made up of fellows who had a little money and plenty of brawn and experience to contribute. Benny Tucker, bell captain at a Miami hotel, learned about the plan and the fellows liked him. Another chap, Jim Brown, an insurance claim adjuster, became interested and that made a crew of five. All were young, enthusiastic; three had boat handling experience and things were looking up.

But what about Mrs. Atkins and the daughter? Bruce couldn't just walk out and leave them behind, even if Nancy did have a good job as secretary. So they all got their heads together and decided that Nancy and the baby would go along as Keeper of the Log. Nancy plans to write a book about the trip.

Firms and individuals began offering assistance. One concern is providing tool repair kits, another medical supplies. And that reminds me—Bruce said they would welcome a young doctor to round out their crew if they could find one.

Other offerings include paint and varnish, air foam mattresses for bunks, and a supply of dried apples.

Since the adventure seekers will embark from Florida, somebody should see to it they don't lack for orange juice. How about Minute Malt or Snow Crop? And Dick Pope of Cypress Gardens would probably be glad to promote some of those famed stanzon swim suits for Nancy and little Robin. It sounds like a lot of fund and certainly a world of experience.

The "Vagabond" is being readied for a two-year round-the-world trip, and the courageous adventures expect to hop off some time in October. Bon Voyage, youngsters, and God speed.

Metropolitan Miami construction during the first six months of this year totaled $96,733,000, reports the F. W. Dodge Corporation.

Mortgage loans in the United States increased 22 percent during the first six months of 1953, according to Charles L. Clements, president of the United States Savings and Loan League.
